

BABY INVALIDS RECEIVE.OPENING OF THE NEW POST-GRADUATE HOSPITAL.

Present Quarters for the Youngsters on the Upper Floors—A Roof Garden that a Playing Room—with a Sun Parlor for Rainy Days—The Incubator. The little inmates of the babies' wards of the Post-Graduate Hospital were "at home" yesterday afternoon. They gave their respects to about a thousand persons in their new upper quarters on the fourth and fifth floors of the new hospital building at Twenty-first street and Second Avenue. As the hundred children lay in their white coats covered with white overalls, each holding a bunch of laces, it was hard to believe that they were the children of parents too poor to care for them.

The witnesses wanted by Dr. Mayes's counsel are the two men little Carl Miller says he sent to the defendant with one of his proposals to give up his habit of turning State's evidence for the novelty of testifying for the defense. One of these men has been found on the Island, where he is doing time for a lapse of memory about a trifling bit of somebody's personal property, but the other cannot be found. It has not been indicated what the defense would do with these witnesses if they turned up, but they can affect the missing witness of the prosecution.

It was known that yesterday was to be the medical examination of the defense, and the defendant, Dr. Mayes, seemed to be in high spirits. He usually looks as if he did not have a day and never would care one way or another about it, but yesterday he smiled frequently, nodded cheerfully to his wife, and regarded Prof. Doremus and his neat little case of ascertained poison tests with the interest in which there was no trace of malice.

Mrs. Mayes, the sphinx, was uncommonly chatty yesterday, though she said nothing, but after Dr. O'Sullivan had left his usual morning visit, she stood by the window and looked out on the park with an expression that could not have given her more satisfaction. If Dr. O'Sullivan had brought her a new hat. Aside from the appearance of the defendants, the day was dull.

For the first time in all of the day. When he testifies he does not sit in the witness chair like any other witness. He opens his umbrella and tubes and butter slices so that the jury can look at them. Yesterday he suffered from a broken rib, fractured knee cap, and other injuries that may result in her death. Her injuries were inflicted by Dr. Brandt, the surgeon, on Saturday night. She was taken to Vincent's Hospital.

The woman's husband died ten years ago, and she has since been living with J. Leader, a retired sailor, who is 84 years old.

She says that he has been in the habit of beating her when he was drunk. He got home very drunk on Saturday night and beat her.

He has been drinking since he got home.

The essential part of his testimony is that he took all the organs from Brandt's dismembered body and used them to make an arsenic to kill his, the wicked elephant. Then he proceeded to tell just how he found the animal and how he killed them. Not that any one in the world wanted to know.

The case goes on to-day.
